PHOTOPLAY

"The Flying Twins"

The thrilling adventures of two little girls who run away with the circus, but soon tire of its hardships and disappointments.

This feature is a four act Mutual Masterpiece of high quality, featuring MARION and MADELINE FAIRBANKS, two girl acrobats, the celebrated Than-houser Twins. The twins are supported by a splendid company. A three ring circus is used for the settings of the big scenes, but even without this the play would be a photoplay marvel.

MORE CARE AT MOVIE HOUSES

Want Extra Precaution about Over-Crowding at Rear of Last Row of Seats. Various Other Changes Recommended.

Burgess Eicholtz has received from the Department of Labor and Industry a communication urging that special action be taken by the town council to regulate the number of persons standing in the rear of the local moving picture houses, and the placing of signs and other obstructions at the entrances. The letter sent to Gettysburg is one of hundreds sent to all the boroughs in the state having more than 1000 population.

Copies of a specimen ordinance are being sent to boroughs and cities all over the State which, if passed by the councilmanic bodies, will bring conditions under local police control as co-operative with the Labor Department. The specimen ordinance includes in its regulations theatres, opera houses, and other buildings used for public assemblage in addition to motion picture houses. Penalties fixed in the ordinance vary from $25 for the first offense, to $50, or thirty days imprisonment, or both, for the second offense.

By the terms of the ordinance, every person standing behind the last row of seats would have at least three square feet of floor space and a five foot passage-way would always be maintained between the foyer wall and the standing space, and an independent exit would be available for such standing space.

Notice would be posted setting forth the number of persons permitted to stand in the rear of the house and in no event would the number of persons standing be allowed to exceed twenty per cent of the seating capacity of the main floor. No person would be allowed to stand in any aisle except the regular employees, nor to stand in any of the exits.

Easels or other stands holding pictures or lithographs or obstructions of any kind could not be placed in the lobby or entrance corridor. Lithographs could be suspended from above or placed on the walls but the lower edge of suspended lithographs would be seven feet above the floor.

The ordinance makes the manager or person in charge responsible for the violation of any of the provisions and when all seats or permissible standing space is occupied the sale of tickets must be stopped.

LANDMARK FALLS

Raze Historical Inn to Erect Big Building.

House wreckers began Monday in Hanover to raze the eight buildings which occupy one eighth of Center Square and half a block on Carlisle street, preparatory to the erection of a handsome store and office building by Sheppard and Myers, Hanover shoe manufacturers.

The purchase of these properties from the Sprengle and Slagle estates was a record real estate deal. It, however, will remove a historic landmark as the structure on the corner of Carlisle street and Centre Square antedates the revolution. On July 2, 1791, George Washington occupied a room in this building, and in his diary describes it as "a good inn."

THE PASSION PLAY

Religious Observance to be Depicted in Evening Lecture.

Rev. S. Winfield Herman, of Harrisburg, will deliver an illustrated lecture in St. James Chapel, April fourth, at eight o'clock on "The Passion Play" which he witnessed at its last presentation in Oberammergau. Music will be given by a quartet from college. A silver offering will be lifted.

GETTYSBURG AUTO OWNERS FLEECE?

Scheme to Get Accessories for their Cars at Low Prices Draws a Number into Plan. Arrest Made.

Quite a number of automobilists of Gettysburg, who were recently persuaded to become members of the International Automobile League, of Buffalo, N. Y., are interested in the news that Harry Ames Auker, a vice president of the league, who made a trip through this section some time ago, has encountered trouble and is in prison on a charge of conspiracy to defraud in connection with the operation of the league.

Some prominent Gettysburg men are members of the league, having joined for the purpose of securing automobile tires and accessories at greatly reduced prices.

The prosecution is being made by the American Automobile association which, through Richard H. Lee, chairman of the legislative committee and president of the Cleveland Automobile club, has been conducting a searching investigation into the affair for the past three months. Institution of action in the federal courts was decided upon at a special meeting of the executive committee of the A. A. A. held in Philadelphia last Thursday.

Just how many Gettysburg men were persuaded to join the league is not definitely known. Van Auker, while in town revealed a wonderful fluency of speech.

RETIREES

Lutheran Minister well Known in Gettysburg Completes Long Service.

After fifty-seven years in the active ministry of the Lutheran church, Rev. Dr. Jonathan R. Dimm, pastor of the Shamokin Dam Lutheran church for thirty-two years, and former president of Susquehanna University, has retired. Dr. Dimm preached his farewell sermon Sunday. At the age of twenty-one years, he entered Gettysburg College and was graduated in 1857.

Dr. Dimm's most important work as an educator was wrought in the Missionary Institute, at Selinsgrove. Here was an institution of one building and grounds worth about $5000. It had a literary and theological department with only forty-three students. It was twenty-five years old, had become a forlorn hope and was about to be disbanded. To the principalship of the literary department Dr. Dimm was unexpectedly called by the board of directors. Dr. Dimm took the property at his own risk, without guarantee of expenses and carried it forward for twelve years. When the enrollment reached 150, the name was changed to Susquehanna University, many improvements were made and the institution freed of debt. He was voted an allowance by the Carnegie Foundation for Improvement in Teaching.

WEAVER—ROLAND

Former Gettysburgian is Married in Philadelphia by his Uncle.

At high noon Saturday, April first, in the House of Prayer Protestant Episcopal church, Branchtown, Philadelphia, Ralph M. Weaver and Miss Lucie Roland were married by Rev. H. G. Vincent, rector, an uncle of the bridegroom. Mr. Weaver is a son of the late Edward A. Weaver, and until very lately a citizen of Gettysburg. He is a graduate of the high school and college. The bride is a resident of Reading.

The happy couple started immediately after the wedding breakfast at the rectory to their new home in Wayne, N. J., where Mr. Weaver is employed as a chemist.

ANOTHER PHYSICIAN

Dr. Erlinger, of Washington, to Practice with Dr. Stover.

Owing to the press of business Dr. Stover, of Bendersville, will have Dr. Erlinger, of Washington, D. C., associated with him after June 1st. Dr. Erlinger is supposed to have very high recommendations as a general practitioner. The new firm will be known as Stover and Erlinger.

WAR VETERANS TAKEN BY DEATH

Brother of the Late Edward A. Weaver Dies in Portland, Oregon. Man whose Bravery here was Rewarded Died Monday.

JOHN P. F. WEAVER

John Philip Fisher Weaver, former resident of the county and a veteran of the Civil War, died on Friday at his home in Portland, Oregon, aged 71 years, 9 months and 24 days. Death came suddenly from an attack of heart failure.

He was a son of Josiah G. and Maria Susan Weaver, both deceased, and was born at Center Mills. During the Civil War he served in a Pennsylvania cavalry command and was engaged at many notable battles, among them Cold Harbor, Petersburg, Hatch's Run, Poplin Grove, and at Appomattox. He had resided in the West for the past forty years but made frequent visits to his many friends in the East. He was well known in Gettysburg and the county.

He leaves his wife and these children all residing in Portland, Mrs. Laura Belle Riners, John Norris, Howard, and Rufus B. Weaver. A daughter, May, died several years ago. He leaves five sisters and a brother, Mrs. Sarah Mundorff, of Mt. Holly Springs; Mrs. Isabelle W. Mowery, of Marietta; Ellen Martha Weaver, of Harrisburg; Susan M. Weaver and Reverend J. Weaver, of near Gettysburg; Mrs. Laura M. Haverstick, of Altoona. His brother, Edward A. Weaver Esq., of Gettysburg, died about six months ago.

The funeral was held in Portland.

MRS. HANSON LIGHTNER

Anna E. (Rose) Lightner, wife of Hanson Lightner, died at her home along the Baltimore pike, near town, Monday evening from diabetes, aged 70 years, 4 months, and 18 days.

She leaves her husband and the following children: Mrs. Charles Kappes and Mrs. Robert Wisler, both of Gettysburg; John Lightner, of Dixon, Illinois; Arthur Lightner, of Straban township; and Misses Maude and Katie Lightner, at home. She also leaves two brothers, Elmer and George Rose, of Philadelphia, and two sisters in Baltimore.

Funeral Thursday morning at 10:30, at the house, conducted by Dr. T. J. Barkley, her pastor, and interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

JOSEPH REEVES

Joseph Reeves, a former resident of this county, died Sunday afternoon at the home of his son, Edward R. Reeves, in Waynesboro, aged 72 years, 8 months and 12 days.

His wife who, before marriage, was Amanda Cline, of this county, died in 1911 and he leaves six children, all living in Franklin county. He also leaves a sister, Mrs. James Bishop, of Fairfield.

Funeral Wednesday afternoon in Waynesboro.

MAJOR HUNTER

Major Robert W. Hunter, Confederate veteran, lawyer and journalist, died in Washington on Monday after a short illness. He was born in Martinsburg, and was in his seventy-ninth year.

Major Hunter was with "Stonewall" Jackson at Manassas, was promoted for gallantry at Gettysburg, and fought on nearly every battlefield in Virginia during the Civil War. After the Appomattox surrender he edited and published the Winchester, Va., "Times."

PLANK TO BUILD

Buys Carlisle Street Lot and will Erect House.

Mrs. J. Emory Bair has sold to Eddie Plank a 60 foot lot on Carlisle street, opposite the new Gettysburg Academy building. Mr. Plank will erect a residence this summer. J. M. Blocher has purchased from Mrs. Bair ten feet on the south side of his house.

BUYS FARM

Althodore Bushman Place is Sold to Waynesboro Man.

Frank H. Stouffer, a Waynesboro real estate dealer, has purchased the 200-acre farm of Althodore Bushman, on the Baltimore turnpike, about a mile and a half south of Gettysburg. Mr. Stouffer will make some improvements to it and then offer it for sale.

ARRANGING FOR MARKET OPENING

Truckers will be Given Same Stalls as in Former Years if they so Desire. First Tuesday in May for Opening.

Those engaged in the trucking business declare that, for the first few weeks of the season, there will be but little on hand if the present uncertainty of the weather continues. The same condition prevailed at this time last year and the trucking season was very slow in opening, but the first Tuesday in May seems to be a date generally acceptable to all as the opening time.

The market, as now run, pays its own expenses and there has been little complaint from any source concerning the former abuses.

Monday, May 1, has been announced as the day for assigning the stalls at the Gettysburg curb market for the present year. The first session of market will be held the following day.

These dates are provided in the ordinance passed several years ago, and amended after several conferences between the committee of council and representatives of the truckers. The custom of allowing former renters to secure the same stalls for the ensuing year will again be followed, many of them being identified with certain portions of the Square and preferring to conduct their stands at the places where their patrons know they may be found.

So satisfactory was the market ordinance in effect last summer that not one suggestion has been made for any change and the agitation from certain quarters for the discontinuance of one of Gettysburg's most popular institutions has apparently vanished completely. It will doubtless be as popular this year as ever before.

WILL NOW PLANT THE CHERRY TREE

This Fruit to Provide Food for Insect Killing Birds. Seedlings will be Put out this Spring According to Plans.

Nearly 10,000 seedling black cherry trees are to be planted this year under the auspices of the State forestry department as part of the general plan to provide food for insect-killing birds in the wooded portions of the state. The use of the cherry trees has been adopted instead of planting grape vines, which were set out on experimental tracts in state reserves last year, and it is expected that the trees will furnish both timber and food.

Many of the trees will be planted along roadsides to encourage bird life in farming districts. Some will be planted on state reserves and others will be given to individuals who have been working with the foresters and who will permit observations to be made. The trees were all raised in the state's nurseries.

In addition to planting the cherry seedlings and experimenting with grape vines, the state forestry men are making tests with various species of trees, which will bear edible fruit and carry it far into the winter for the birds. Among others a new species of mulberry is being experimented with.

CAMP FIRE MASQUERADE

Young Girls and Boys Enjoy Novel Evening's Entertainment.

(Contributed)

The Monocisee Camp Fire entertained Troop 1 of the Boy Scouts at an April Fool masquerade in the Blocher building Saturday evening. The camp fire girls and their guests came attired in grotesque costumes. Mrs. W. F. Gilliland and Mrs. C. B. Stauffer were the chaperons. Rev. F. E. Taylor was one of the guests. It. L. Wagner of college was master of ceremonies.

As the first event of the evening each person was introduced to the assembly in their assumed characters. Many of the costumes were quite clever in their make-up. Each character was heartily applauded. The masks were then removed. Then followed several mock addresses, "Why is Wire", by Scout Robert Morris, "Why is a Chicken", by Scout Paul McClain. Others were then required to perform seemingly impossible stunts. An old fashioned spelling bee was the next event. The words were spelled and pronounced in the reverse order. This event occasioned considerable fun.

Next came an "Indoor Track Meet" which involved both fun and skill. The broad smile, the standing broad grin, the twenty foot handicap dash, the hobble hurdle race and several other events revealed a number of promising athletes. Charles Swartz, of college, performed a number of clever gymnastic stunts. Benson Alteman amused all with a clever contortionist stunt. The final event of the evening was the serving of refreshments by a committee of camp fire girls. The spirit of the evening was even carried out in the refreshments.

The party ended with the singing of "Wohelo" by the camp fire girls, several cheers by the scouts, and a patriotic song by the twin organizations.

U. S. TROOPS FIGHT VILLISTA FORCE

SCOUTS HAVE A SKIRMISH

Mountains Are Combed for Outlaw Leader Himself, But in Vain, Pershing Says.

Camp of General Pershing, April 3 (by aeroplane to Colonia Dublan and by radio to Columbus, N. M., April 4).—American cavalrymen encountered a fleeing force of Francisco Villa's men and sounds of firing have been heard from that direction, but no report has been made to headquarters as to the results.

The mountains of Guerrero are being combed thoroughly for Villa by the American forces, but nothing has been learned as to his whereabouts other than that captured bandits said he was being carried further into the mountains in his jolting coach.

General Pershing announced that troops of the infantry are to be used for mountain climbing, co-operating with the cavalrymen, who have borne the brunt of the five-day pursuit of Villa. The infantrymen have been going through hardening preparations in hill-climbing marches for about two weeks, and their officers say they are in excellent physical trim.

The troops were closely behind Villa on Sunday, entering the village of — shortly after he had fled from it. It was suspected he might be hidden in one of his huts, and every precaution was taken to effect the capture. Two squadrons of cavalry entered the village from opposite sides simultaneously.

There have been a number of minor skirmishes near the village, two scouts reporting they encountered two Villa men on its outskirts on Sunday. They fought for five minutes without casualties.

American air scouts are now flying over the entire Villa territory and are carrying despatches from the front to the field base and field headquarters. Motor trucks also have been able to penetrate the mountain waste, almost as far as the territory occupied by the cavalry under Colonel George A. Dodd.

Altogether, General Pershing is supposed to have 12,000 men in Mexico. About 2500 of these are said to be in the advance columns, under direction of Colonel Dodd. The disposal of the others is a cause of considerable mystery and speculation. One theory advanced is that Pershing may be using them in perfecting some carefully planned trap to hem in the fugitive.

VILLA LEADER SLAIN

Clash Between Bandit's Followers and Carranza Troops.

Washington, April 3.—A fight between one of the smaller groups of Villa and Carranza forces, the latter under Colonel Cano, March 29 (Thursday), was reported to the war department by Major General Frederick Funston, at San Antonio, Tex.

Emanuel Boco, the Villa leader, was killed. Although previous reports had placed doubt upon the loyalty of Colonel Cano, General Funston's report indicated that he was aiding the American troops against Villa.

CANAL TO OPEN APRIL 15

Goethals Believes Waterway Will Not Be Closed Again.

Panama, April 4.—General Goethals, governor of the canal zone, made an examination of the slide area in the Gaillard cut to satisfy himself regarding conditions.

He said afterward that the situation looked even more favorable to him than he had expected, and that April 15 would remain unchanged as the date for reopening the waterway.

General Goethals expressed the belief that the canal would not again be closed to traffic on account of slides in the cut.

Demolish Smyrna Defenses.

London, April 4.—Fort S. George and Sanjak, as well as the other coastal defenses of Smyrna were destroyed Friday in a three-hour bombardment by a British warship, says a despatch to the Times from Salonika. The Turks did not reply to the fire of the warship. Sanjak is the chief work commanding the entrance to Smyrna harbor.

San Antonio, Tex., April 4.—Lieutenant John E. This announcement was made by Major General Funston.

MORMONS PLAN TO CONVERT WAR WIDOWS

1000 Missionaries to Go to Europe.

Philadelphia, April 4.—One thousand selected missionaries, mostly young men and women, are awaiting the call of the Mormon church to go to Europe as soon as possible for the purpose of converting war widows to the faith and bringing them to the United States for polygamous purposes, according to information which ex-Senator Frank J. Cannon got in Salt Lake City, the center of the propaganda.

Information gleaned from press despatches and other sources indicate that this report was true, declared Mr. Cannon, previous to addressing a meeting in the Baptist Temple called in the name of practically every evangelical minister in the city to ask the government to pass an amendment to the constitution forbidding polygamy and also protesting against and polygamous propaganda which emanates from the United States.

These young men and women, said the ex-senator, are well educated and of fine appearance. Among the Mormons, he declared, it was considered not good form for any young man to fall of performing some such mission for the church. He said it was a social usage as binding as other social usages are in communities.

"This report of Mormon activity in Europe," said Mr. Cannon, "is in accord with the advertised inclination and discussion of some of the governments of Europe to replenish the male population broken by the war. It is in accord with what I know of the activity and propaganda of the Mormon church."

"When the war began there was a rush of Mormon missionaries from continental Europe. Some of them remained in England and some of them came back to the United States. This was followed by activity of Mormon missionaries here in the east, due presumably to the return of those who had been to Europe."

GERMANS BEGIN NEWVERDUN DRIVE

Hurl Vast Forces at French Positions.

BATTLE RAGES ALL NIGHT

Defenders Recover Part of Wood on Douaumont-Vaux Front — Teutons Move Big Guns to Front.

London, April 4.—Heavy masses of troops are being hurled by the Germans against the defenses of Verdun, which are being tested to the limit at vital points.

The French are offering tenacious resistance and, according to Paris, have succeeded in pressing back the crown prince's forces between Vaux and Douaumont, where sledgehammers had badly dented the French lines within the past few days.

A new phase of the battle of Verdun, now in its forty-third day, has begun, and the belief prevails in Paris that the violence of the latest attacks foreshadows another attempt by the Germans to rush the fortress with vast forces. New batteries of large caliber have been moved up closer to the French front and the German infantry has been reformed and reorganized.

Forty-two centimeter guns, the most powerful in the world, are now being used by the Germans in their bombardment of the French positions. French aviators are trying to learn the location of these guns, which accounts for the extraordinary aerial activity over the Verdun front for the past forty-eight hours.

By the capture of a foothill in Caillotte wood, which is south of Fort Douaumont, the Germans are now less than five miles from Verdun, on the northeastern side of the fortress. On the west side the Germans have evidently begun their drive against the French positions at Hill 304, which lies east of Haucourt and west of Le Mort Homme (Dead Man's Hill). Hill 304 commands the avenue of communication for the French troops holding the Bethincourt salient.

Fighting continued all night east of the Meuse, between Douaumont and Vaux. The issue turned generally, in favor of the French, who gained ground in the northern part of Caillotte wood. West of the river a bombardment was carried on near Haucourt without effect.

The statement says that in the fighting the Germans lengthened their front of attack to about two miles.

Sunday's fighting, on the whole, was not unfavorable to the French, it is authoritatively stated. The object of the Germans was to clear the approaches to Fort Douaumont and 15,000 men were thrown forward on the mile and a half line between Douaumont fort and the village of Vaux. The attacking force succeeded in crossing a little ravine which hitherto had stopped them, and in entering the Caillotte wood.

Further east they dislodged the French from the last ruined houses of the village of Vaux, but the French positions were so placed as to make it practically impossible for the Germans to debouch from the village. Vigorous French counter attacks drove them back to the upper fringe of Caillotte.

The total result of the very formidable effort they had put forth was a gain for the Germans of about 500 yards, more than offset, it is affirmed, by the heavy losses they suffered. On the west of the river the Germans attacked the Avocourt blockhouse in a no less determined manner, but again met with complete failure, the observers declare.

CAUCASUS DRIVE CHECKED

Constantinople Says Turks Have Blocked Russian Progress.

Berlin, April 4.—Constantinople despatches given out by the Overseas News agency, say that the Turkish troops on the Caucasian front have received considerable reinforcements and that the Russian offensive has been checked.

Recently the only fighting has been among small detachments.

Christy, Artist, Asks Divorce.

Zanesville, O., April 4.—Howard Chandler Christy, artist, who has his summer home here, filed suit for divorce against his wife, Mabelle Thompson Christy. Gross neglect is the charge, but the papers have been withdrawn. Seven years ago they fought a battle over the custody of their daughter, Natalie, in which the father won.

105 Lost With Vessel.

Tokio, April 4.—The steamship Wakatsu Maru, bound from Nagasaki for coastal points, has been wrecked on a sunken rock. Eighty-nine of her passengers and sixteen members of the crew are believed to have been drowned.

Russian Transport Sunk.

Constantinople, April 4.—A Russian transport carrying troops has been sunk in the Black sea by a Turkish submarine, it was announced by the admiralty. The transport, which was sunk on March 29, was a vessel of about 12,000 tons.

50 ARRESTED IN STRIKE DISORDERS

Most of Them Fined in Luzerne Police Court.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 4.—Fifty men and boys whose actions were considered dangerous to the peace of the community were arraigned in police court, having been arrested in connection with trolley strike disorders.

Practically every man arrested was fined from $10 to $25 and some were held under bail for court.

Chief of Police Zoeller appealed to the clergy of Wyoming valley for aid in suppressing riot and disorder. He sent out letters to all clergymen in which he said:

"The police feel that in order to cope with the situation, it will be necessary for them to have the moral backing of the clergy. We feel that your offices will go a great way to help clarify the situation."

The police arrested Raymond Hubbell, a traction company trainman, for carrying a revolver and fifty rounds of ammunition. He was held for court.

No disorders were reported. In this city, the police have been informed that they must preserve order at any cost. They were told that citizens are charging them with incompetency.

MILITIA ON GENERAL STAFF

Senate Voted to Create a National Guard Section.

Washington, April 4.—Senator Cummins' amendment to the senate army bill to create a national guard section of five state officers in the general staff was adopted by the senate by a vote of thirty-five to thirty.

The vote was a defeat for Senator Chamberlain and the military committee which had rejected the proposal on the ground that it would be unsafe to place national guard officers in such positions of high trust. The vote was the first in the senate on the army bill, and many Democrats supported the amendment. Senator Chamberlain and his colleagues did not attempt to conceal their disappointment.

Westinghouse Co. Raises Wages.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 4.—Striking toolmakers in the plants of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company voted to accept the company's offer of double time for Sunday work and an increase of ten per cent in the wage scale. The strike threatened to tie up important parts of the war munitions making section.

Killed Warning of Flood.

Towanda, Pa., April 4.—Abraham Hiltz, seventy, a retired farmer, while hurrying along the Lehigh tracks north of Towanda, bent on notifying a neighbor of danger to his livestock from the raging waters of the Susquehanna river, was struck by a fast train and instantly killed. His body was hurled 100 feet almost into the river.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

CREAM SAUCE SUCCESS.

WHITE sauce, cream sauce or roux, all essentially the same thing, is the foundation for much in the culinary world. Souffles, baked omelets, cream soups and many sauces all require it as a foundation, hence the mastery of its making is important to every successful cook.

One important thing to remember is that the flour must be thoroughly cooked if the sauce is to be considered successful. It is better to let a thin sauce cook slowly until it is thicker than to add more flour to gain thickness.

Another thing to remember is that in making a cream soup the other ingredients—meat stock, tomato juice, vegetable puree or whatever it may be—should be poured into the milk. This makes curdling less likely.

Sometimes the acid in the other ingredient of cream soup causes milk to curdle. Also, the addition of salt to fresh milk curdles it, and so salt should never be added until the very last minute to a cream soup.

If cream soup does curdle after it is mixed immediately beat it thoroughly with an egg beater to bring back its original creamy state.

Try adding a small pinch of soda to the milk mixture before pouring to tomato or any other very acidulous substance into it.

Creamed Eggs.—Cook together a tablespoonful of butter and half as much flour, and when they bubble pour upon them a cup of rich milk, one-half milk and half cream. Stir to a smooth white sauce, season to taste and pour into heated nappies. Have the sauce reach a third of the way up the inside of the nappies. Drop an egg in each, put a bit of butter on top and set in the oven until the whole is set. Serve at once.

WHISKERS FIGURE IN FIGHT

Recalled That William Randolph Hearst Called Supreme Court Justice "Animated Feather Duster," Meaning That He Was Lively and Wore a Beard—To Push Immigration Bill.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, April 4.—[Special].—Whiskers will not make much of a campaign issue, but they may furnish a diversion before the votes are cast in November. I believe it was William Randolph Hearst who called Charles E. Hughes "an animated feather duster," meaning he was particularly lively and wore a beard.

"It looks as if you were going to have some trouble in this campaign with your whiskers," said one Democratic senator to Senator Borah of Idaho, meaning that Hughes would be a factor.

"Not any more trouble with whiskers than you will have," was Borah's reply.

"Whose whiskers are going to bother us?" asked the Democrat.

"Carraza's," was Borah's reply. "Before you get through with the campaign I am thinking that those Mexican whiskers will play an important part."

Not a Very High Plane.

This matter of beards does not place the campaign upon a very high plane, but what was really meant is more important. It was the Democrat's flippancy way of saying that the talk about Hughes as a candidate was becoming quite a troublesome question to a number of Republicans. Borah's retort was that Mexico would be the troublesome question for the Democrats during the coming campaign. It is evident that Wilson's relations with Carraza will have full discussion before the close of the present session of congress.

"If They Catch Villa?"

There are Democrats who do not believe that the outlook is very favorable for success this fall, but who are hopeful that something will come their way. "If they catch Villa without any great disaster to American troops it will give Wilson a great boost," remarked one of the shrewd Democrats of the senate. "The move in Mexico will do the president a lot of good."

"Socializing" of a Possibility.

For nearly five years Justice Hughes has been a resident of Washington, but it has not been until lately that the clubbers began "socializing" the justice and his wife. During the past winter and more frequently lately there has been a desire to have Justice and Mrs. Hughes "among those present" at many of the dinners, teas and receptions. Straws are not the only indications of a wind, particularly a political breeze.

The "Watchful Waiting" Message.

"If you Republicans continue to criticize the president's Mexican policy the facts about his first message on that subject will be made public." That was a remark of a Democratic senator. He then went on to say: "Before that message was read in congress the president sent for members of the foreign committees of both houses and told them what he was going to do. Only Senator O'Gorman of New York and Senator Swanson of Virginia offered any objection. They advised against the message and recommended that the president say nothing. That was the time for the Republicans to have spoken. They ought to have then expressed their opinions, but they had nothing to say."

Perhaps they recalled that for nearly two years their own administration had been pursuing a policy of "watchful waiting," although not then known by that term.

Will Push Immigration.

Members of the immigration committee in the senate say there is not going to be any delay in considering the bill; that it will be pushed along just as soon as possible when the military bill is out of the way. Senator Smith of South Carolina expects to report it and have it ready for consideration within a few weeks.

"Begin at the Top," Says Hoke.

Every time an effort is made to consider bills on the calendar of the senate, and there are many of them, there is an objection by Senator Hoke Smith. "Begin at the top," says the Georgia senator, "and consider the bills in their order."

It so happens that a bill in which he is very much interested is at the top of the calendar. But it also meets with very strong opposition.

Water Power Bobs Up.

By passing the general dam bill and considering for several weeks the water power site bill the senate did not get rid of the subject of water power and its utility. Along come the Alabama senators with a proposition to utilize the power possibilities of the Coosa river in order to manufacture nitric acid for high explosives. They want that to be included as a part of the national defense program that is being urged.

Mystery of Woman.

A distinguished physician says there is no such thing as a normal woman. We presume that what the doctor means to say is that women are normally abnormal.

An Ancient Mariner's Tale

By F. A. MITCHEL

The bells were tolling in a fishing village where I was temporarily stopping. On a wooden bench facing the ocean sat an old man, and I, having time on my hands, sat down beside him. I asked him the cause of the tolling, and he said that a sea captain who had long been a resident of the place had died and was being buried. I remarked on the dismal effect of the strokes, each stroke following the one before after a long interval in painful regularity.

"You think that a dismal sound, sir?" said the old man. "What would you think if you heard a bell tolling for the dead that had been rigged by their selves for that particular purpose? In this case a sexton is pulling on the rope; in the case I'm talking about the dead was a tolling bell."

I looked aside at the old man curiously. There was something about him to indicate that he had been a sailor and a light in his eye that caused me to wonder if he were not an Ancient Mariner with a tale to tell. Though the light did not exactly indicate insanity, the fact of his speaking of the dead tolling their own funeral bells looked suspicious. I asked him to explain, and he did so as follows:

"When I was a youngster I sailed from this port every two or three years for the east. There was no Suez canal in those days, and we always went around the Horn or the Cape. On one of them voyages when we were in the Pacific what I'm going to tell you happened. The Pacific is so big that it's kind of lonesome. When a person has seen nothing but water for a month and nary a ship or sighted land, even a sailor will sometimes feel as if he's lost in never ending space.

"One night when we'd had reason to feel that way I was one of the watch, and sailin' along in the darkness—there was neither moon or stars—I thought I heard the faint sound of a bell. I listened hard and heard it again. When I heard it a third time I asked one of the watch if he heard it too. He listened and said he did. Then I knew it wasn't my fancy.

"One after another the rest of the watch heard the sound. It wasn't regular; the strokes came any way. There wasn't no bell at sea that ever made such sounds except a bell buoy. But we was in the middle of the Pacific ocean, where there wasn't no need of a bell buoy. And yet the strokes kept coming, sometimes near together, sometimes far apart, sometimes heavy, sometimes light, and in that big ocean of blackness atop and below they was awful melancholy.

"Either we was movin' toward the sounds or they was movin' toward us or maybe both. Anyway they was growin' plainer. The old man came on deck all of a sudden. He'd heard the tollin' and couldn't make it out. It drifted past us in the darkness, soundin' clear for awhile, then growin' fainter astern. The old man couldn't bear to lose it without knowin' what it was and give an order to put the ship about and stand by or follow if needed till dawn, which was a couple of hours off. So we did, and during them two hours, the dolefullest I ever experienced, we kept within the sound of that bell.

"Morning came at last, and a couple of miles away we saw sompin black which, as the light grew, turned out to be a dismantled ship. She was a-rollin' and a-plungin', and every time she rolled or plunged we heard that solemn tollin'. That's what we'd been hearin'—the wreck's bell.

"The old man allowed that she was a derelict with no one aboard of her; and her bell rope had rolled away or become unlash. We sailed up to within a short pull of her, and the second mate boarded her. I believe one of the boat's crew to take him there. Her decks were awash, and it was plain there was nothin' alive on her before we got to her. We went on to her deck forward, which was a little higher than the stern, and looked around, but we didn't go below. One of the men looked down a hatch, and his report was not encouraging for us to go down among the dead men, and we let 'em alone.

"Well, now, I told you that I'd known a case where the dead tolled their own funeral bell. This was it. The crew, knowin' they was doomed, had nailed a board up near the bell and had pointed on it a message—

"Ad hope gone. The ship's bell will toll our requiem."

"They had cut away the bell rope entirely.

"We'd brought a blast with us to sink the ship, and we put it where it would do the work, but the old man fearin' we might have had ordered the mate on no account to leave that bell a-tollin' to give persons on other ships the shivers. We'd brought axes with us, of course, and before then the blast we chopped away the bell's supports. And, would you believe me, sir, when it rolled down on to the deck it sounded like a dyin' wail.

"Heave the cursed thing overboard," yelled the mate.

"We did that too, and when it struck the water it sounded like a dead man's last gasp."

Fuss and Feathers.

"Some men uses big words," said Uncle Eben, "de same as a turkey spreads his tail feathers. Dey makes an elegant impression, but dey don't represent no real meat."

Still One Thing to Learn.

"What are your daughters studyin' now?" "Nothing," replied Mr. Canrox. "They have learnt all about music, painting, an' literature. All they've got left to learn is not to bother people with them."

Had Enough.

A party of musicians were out "busking" one Christmas eve, and their music was not such as would "soothe the savage breast." They were about to begin playing in one of the streets when an elderly dame came out and handing them a coin, remarked: "You need not bother to play. I heard you in the next street."

Influence of Goodness.

The virtues and joys that spring up in the hearts of our associates when the shadow of our benignant personality falls upon them are commensurate by them to others. Thus the influence of all the goodness we have practiced finds its way through countless channels into innumerable lives, and endures when our earthly existence has ended and our names have been forgotten.

Masculine and Feminine Sins.

Hardly any priest, hardly any physician, would agree that women are better morally than men. There are some kinds of sin which men commit more readily than women. Such are the sins of lust, and possibly those of anger. But there are others where men and women seem to offend about equally, the sins of gluttony, sloth, and covetousness. And of the sins of pride and envy, one might call them pre-eminent feminine sins.—Bernard L. Bell, in the Atlantic.

PUBLIC SALE OF VALUABLE WAREHOUSE PROP- ERTY

Located in Adams County Fruit Belt.

ON

SATURDAY, APRIL 15 1916.

The undersigned, in pursuance of an order of sale from the Court of Common Pleas to them directed, will sell at Public Sale on the premises at Aspers Station, Adams Co., Pa., the following Valuable Real Estate, consisting of two adjoining and

TRACT NO. 1, containing FIFTY-NINE PERCHES, is a plot of ground adjoining lands of A. B. Deardorff, H. J. Gulden, and the G. & H. L. R. Co., improved with a three story

WAREHOUSE BUILDING

20 x 50, covered with a slate roof, with fertilizer house, scales and a new office building.

TRACT NO. 2, contains THIRTY-THREE PERCHES, more or less, is another plot of ground adjoining No. 1, improved with a Railroad Switch and Coal Trestle, built with heavy stone abutments, heavy stringers and railroad iron, as well as a new corn crib. This is one of the most valuable locations in eastern Pennsylvania, lying in the heart of the Adams county fruit belt, giving a splendid opportunity in addition to the general warehouse business, to handle fruits and vegetables in large quantities. There is also a demand for a cold storage at his location and the combination would be a valuable asset. Whilst the business is now in the hands of the receivers it is nevertheless enjoying a good trade and the assignees are prepared to show that it is one of the most profitable locations in this part of the State if the business is properly executed.

If anyone wishes to view the property he can do so by calling on D. C. Aspers, Aspers, Pa., who is thoroughly familiar with the details of the business. On account of the insufficient time of advertising the assignees were not permitted legally to offer at public sale on March 4th the valuable property, but it will positively be sold on the above date.

Sale to commence at 1:30 p. m. sharp, when terms and conditions will be made known by Evil in Excess of Fat.

Excess of fat affects the heart by putting an extra burden upon it; it augments the labor of the muscles of breathing, the diaphragm in particular; it interferes with the vital functions of the liver and other internal organs, and by filling the intermuscular spaces it compresses the muscle fibers, causing atrophy and degeneration. This results in constant weakness, slow activity, lassitude, early exhaustion.

Always Wishing.

To be always wishing for something we cannot get is the worst possible way to spend time. All of us have blessings which are enough to make us happy if only we are so wise as to enjoy them instead of fretting for something more. Take the pleasures of today with a grateful heart, and never waste time in hoping you will have something better tomorrow.

Nature's Workings.

How plants absorb nitrogen from the soil is utterly unknown. No animal must get the large quantities of nitrogen that are necessary to it by using plants for food. When the animal or the plant dies the constituents of its body are returned to the earth, where the bacteria of putrefaction break up the elaborate organic chemical compounds upon which the plants again can feed.

The Modern Spirit.

The modern spirit is not the spirit "which always denies," delighting only in destruction; still less is it that which builds castles in the air rather than not construct; it is that spirit which works and will work, "without haste and without rest," gathering harvest after harvest of truth into its barns and devouring error with unquenchable fire.

CHAPTER I—Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck.

CHAPTER II—On his return Bibbs is met at the station by his sister Edith.

CHAPTER III—He finds himself in an inconsiderate and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. He sees Mary Vertrees looking at him from a summer house next door.

CHAPTER IV—The Vertreeses, old town family and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich, and afterward discuss them. Mary puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys.

CHAPTER V—At the Sheridan house-warming banquet Sheridan spreads himself. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attention, and Bibbs hears he is to be sent back to the machine shop.

CHAPTER VI—Mary tells her mother about the banquet and shocks her mother by talking of Jim as a matrimonial

CHAPTER VII.

Through the open country Bibbs was borne flying between brown fields and sun-flecked groves of gray trees, to breathe the rushing, clean air beneath a glorious sky. Upon Bibbs' cheeks there was a hint of actual color, but undeniably its phantom. This apparition may have been partly the result of a lady's bowing to him upon no more formal introduction than the circumstance of his having caught her looking into his window a month before. It seemed to Bibbs that she must have meant to convey her forgiveness. Nor did he lack the impression that he would long remember her as he had just seen her; her veil tumultuously blowing back, her face glowing in the wind—and that look of gay friendliness tossed to him like a fresh rose in carnival.

By and by, upon a rising ground, the driver halted the car, then backed and tacked, and sent it forward again with its nose to the south and the smoke. They passed from the farm lands, and came, in the amber light of November late afternoon, to the farthestmost outskirts of the city. The sky had become only a dingy thickening of the soiled air; and a roar and clangor of metals beat deafeningly on Bibbs' ears. Now the car passed two great blocks of long brick buildings, hideous in all ways possible to make them hideous. And big as these shops were, they were growing bigger, spreading over a third block, where two new structures were mushrooming to competition in some hasty cement process of a stability not over-reassuring. Bibbs pulled the rug closer about him, and not even the phantom of color was left upon his cheeks as he passed this place, for he knew it too well. Across the face of one of the buildings there was an enormous sign: "Sheridan Automatic Pump company, Inc."

Thence they went through streets of wooden houses, all grimed, and adding their own grime from many a sooty chimney; flimsy wooden houses of a thousand flimsy whimsies in the fashioning, built on narrow lots and nudging one another crossly. Along these streets there were skinny shade trees, and here and there a forest elm or walnut had been left; but these were dying. Some people said it was the scale; some said it was the smoke; and some were sure that asphalt and "improving" the streets did it; but Bibbs was in too big a hurry to bother much about trees.

Onward the car bore Bibbs through the older parts of the town where the few solid old houses not already demolished were in transition; some were being made into apartment buildings, others had gone uproariously into trade; one or two peeped humorously over the tops of office buildings of one story in the old front yards. Altogether, the town here was like a boarding-house hash the Sunday after Thanksgiving; the old ingredients were discernible.

This was the fringe of Bigness' own sanctuary, and now Bibbs reached the roaring holy of holies itself. Magnificent new buildings, already dingy, loomed hundreds of feet above him; newer ones, more magnificent, were rising beside them, rising higher; the streets were laid open to their entrails and men worked underground between palisades, and overhead in metal coils webs like spiders in the sky. Trolley cars clanged and shrieked their way round swarming corners; motor cars of every kind and shape known to man habited frightful warnings and frantic demands; hospital ambulances clattered wildly for passage; steam whistles signaled the swinging of titanic tentacle and claw; riveters rattled like machine guns; the ground shook to the thunder of gigantic trucks; and the conglomerate sound of it all was the sound of earthquake playing accompaniments for battle and sudden death.

And in the hurrying crowds, swirling and sifting through the brooding-an-gian camp of iron and steel, one saw the camp followers and the pagan women—there would be work today and dancing tonight. For the Puritan's dry voice is but the crackling of a leaf underfoot in the rush and roar of the coming of the new Egypt.

"Sit Down," Said Sheridan.

"Bibbs was on time." He knew it must be "to the minute" or his father would consider it an outrage; and the big chronometer in Sheridan's office marked four precisely when Bibbs walked in. Coincidentally with his entrance five people who had been at work in the office, under Sheridan's direction, walked out. They departed upon no visible or audible suggestion, and with a promptness that seemed ominous to the newcomer. As the massive door clicked softly behind the elderly stenographer, the last of the procession, Bibbs had a feeling that they all understood that he was a failure as a great man's son; a disappointment, the "queer one" of the family, and that he had been summoned to judgment—a well-founded impression, for that was exactly what they understood.

"Sit down," said Sheridan.

It is frequently an advantage for deans, schoolmasters and worried fathers to place delinquents in the sitting posture. Bibbs sat.

Sheridan, standing, gazed enigmatically upon his son for a period of silence, then walked slowly to a window and stood looking out of it. His big hands, loosely hooked together by the thumbs, behind his back. They were soiled, as were all other hands down town, except such as might be still damp from a basin.

"Well, Bibbs," he said at last, not altering his attitude, "do you know what I'm going to do with you?"

Bibbs, leaning back in his chair, fixed his eyes contemplatively upon the ceiling. "I heard you tell Jim," he began, in his slow way. "You said you'd send him to the machine shop with me if he didn't propose to Miss Vertrees. So I suppose that must be your plan for me, But—"

"But what?" said Sheridan, irritably, as the son paused.

"Isn't there somebody you'd let me propose to?"

That brought his father sharply round to face him. "You beat the devil! Bibbs, what is the matter with you? Why can't you be like anybody else?"

"Liver, maybe," said Bibbs, gently.

"Boh! Even ole Doc Gurney says there's nothin' wrong with you organically. No. You're a dreamer, Bibbs; that's what's the matter, and that's all the matter. Oh, not one of these big dreamers that put through the big deals! No, sir! You're the kind of dreamer that just sits out on the back fence and thinks about how much trouble there must be in the world! That ain't the kind that builds the bridges, Bibbs; it's the kind that borrows fifteen cents from his wife's tinless brother-in-law to get ten cent's worth of plug tobacco and a nickel's worth of quinine."

He put the finishing touch to this etching with a snort, and turned again to the window.

"Look out there!" he bade his son. "Look out o' that window! Look at the life and energy down there! Look at the big things young men are doing in this town! He swung about, coming to the mahogany desk in the middle of the room. "Look at what your own brothers are doing! Look at Rosecoe! Yes, and look at Jim! I made Jim president of the Sheridan Realty company last new year's, and it's an example to any young man—or ole man, either—the way he took hold of it. Last July we found out we wanted two more big warehouses at the pump works—couldn't 'em quick. Contractors said it couldn't be done; said nine or ten months at the soonest; couldn't see it any other way. What'd Jim do? Took the contract himself; found a fellow with a new cement and concrete process; kept men on the job night and day, and stayed on it night and day himself—and, by George! we begin to use them warehouses next week! Four months and a half, and every inch live-proof! I tell you Jim's one of these fellows that make miracles happen! I tell you those young business men I watch just do my heart good! They don't set around on the back fence—no, sir! They're puttin' their life-blood in to it. I tell you, and that's why we're gettin' bigger every minute, and why they're gettin' bigger, and why it's all goin' to keep on gettin' bigger!"

He slumped the desk resoundingly with his open palm, and then, observing that Bibbs remained in the same impassive attitude, with his eyes still fixed upon the ceiling in a contemplation somewhat plaintive, Sheridan was impelled to groan. "Oh, Lord!" he said. "This is the way you always were. I don't believe you understand a darn word I been sayin'. You don't look as if you did. By George! it's discouraging!"

"I don't understand about gettin'—about gettin' bigger," said Bibbs, bringing his gaze down to look at his father placatively. "I don't see just why—"

"What?" Sheridan leaned forward, resting his hands upon the desk and staring across it incredulously at his son.

"I don't understand—exactly—what you want it all bigger for?"

"Great God!" shouted Sheridan, and struck the desk a blow with his clenched fist. "A son of mine asks me that! You go out and ask the poorest day laborer you can find! Ask him that question!"

"I did once," Bibbs interrupted; "when I was in the machine shop. I—"

"What'd he say?"

"He said, 'Oh, hell!'" answered Bibbs, mildly.

"Yes, I reckon he would," Sheridan swung away from the desk. "I reckon he certainly would! And I got plenty sympathy with him right now, myself."

"It's the same answer, then?" Bibbs' voice was serious, almost tremulous.

"Damnation!" Sheridan roared. "Did you ever hear the word prosperity, you nunny? Did you ever hear the word ambition? Did you ever hear the word progress?"

He flung himself into a chair after the outburst, his big chest surging, his throat tumultuous with guttural incoherences. "Now then," he said, huskily.

"A Man's Got to Do a Man's Work."

ly, when the anguish had somewhat abated, "what do you want to do?"

"Taken by surprise, Bibbs stammered.

"What? what do I—what?"

"If I'd let you do exactly what you had, the whim for, what would you do?"

Bibbs looked startled; then timidity overwhelmed him—a profound shyness. He bent his head and fixed his lowered eyes upon the toe of his shoe which he moved to and fro upon the rug, like a culprit called to the desk in school.

"What would you do? Loaf?"

"No, sir," Bibbs' voice was almost inaudible, and what little sound it made was unquestionably a guilty sound. "I suppose I'd—I'd try to—to write."

"Write what?"

"Nothing important—just poems and essays, perhaps."

"I see," said his father, breathing quickly with the restraint he was putting upon himself. "That is, you want to write, but you don't want to write anything of any account."

"You think—"

Sheridan got up again. "I take my hat off to the man that can write a good ad," he said, emphatically. "The best writin' talent in this country is right spang in the ad business today. You buy a magazine for good writin'—look on the back of it! Let me tell you I pay money for that kind o' writin'. Maybe you think it's easy. Just try it! I've tried it, and I can't do it. I tell you an ad's got to be written so it makes people do the hardest thing in this world to get 'em to do it's got to make 'em give up their money! You talk about 'poems and essays.' I tell you when it comes to the actual skill o' puttin' words together so as to make things happen, R. T. Bloss, right here in this city, knows more in a minute than George Waldo Emerson ever knew in his whole life!"

"You—you may be—" Bibbs said, indistinctly, the last word smothered in a cough.

"Of course I'm right! And if it ain't just like you to want to take up with the most out-o'-date kind o' writin' 'Poems and essays.' My dear son, when's work!

why, look at Edith! I expect that poem o' hers would set a pretty high-water mark for you, young man, and it's the only one she's ever managed to write in her whole life! And Edith's a smart girl; she's got more energy in her little finger than you ever give me a chance to see in your whole body. Bibbs, I'm not sayin' a word against poetry. I wouldn't take ten thousand dollars right now for that poem of Edith's; and poetry's all right enough in its place—but you leave it to the girls. A man's got to do a man's work in this world."

He seated himself in a chair at his son's side and, leaning over, tapped Bibbs' confidentially on the knee. "This city's got the greatest future in America, and if my sons behave right by me and by themselves they're goin' to have a mighty fair share of it—a mighty fair share. I love this town. I love it like I do my own business, and I'd fight for it as quick as I'd fight for my own family. It's a beautiful town. Look at our wholesale district; look at any district you want to; look at the park system we're puttin' through, and the boulevards and the public statuary. And she grows. God! how she grows!"

He had become intensely grave; he spoke with solemnity. "Now, Bibbs, I can't take any of it—nor any gold or silver nor buildings nor bonds—away with me in my shroud when I have to go. But I want to leave my share in it to my boys. I've worked for it; I've been a builder and a maker; and two blades of grass have grown where one grew before, whenever I laid my hand on the ground and willed 'em to grow. I've built big, and I want the buildin' to go on. And when my last hour comes I want to know that my boys are ready to take charge. Bibbs, when I'm up above I want to know that the big share I've made mine here below, is growin' bigger and bigger in the charge of my boys."

He leaned back, deeply moved. "There!" he said, huskily. "I've never spoken more what was in my heart in my life. I do it because I want you to understand—and not think me a mean father. I never had to talk that way to Jim and Rosecoe. They understood without any talk, Bibbs."

"I see," said Bibbs. "At least I think I do. But—"

"Wait a minute!" Sheridan raised his hand. "If you see the least bit in the world, then you understand what it meant to start one of my boys and have him come back on me the way you did, and have to be sent to a sanitarium because he couldn't stand work. Now, let's get right down to it, Bibbs. I've had a whole lot o' talk with ole Doc Gurney about you, one time and another, and I reckon I understand your case just about as well as he does, anyway."

"Now, why did work make you sick instead of brace you up and make a man of you the way it ought of done? I pinned ole Gurney down to it. I says, 'Look here, ain't it really because he just plain hated it?' 'Yes,' he says, 'that's it. If he'd enjoyed it, it wouldn't 'a hurt him.' And that's about the way it is."

"Yes," said Bibbs, "that's about the way it is."

"Well, then, I reckon it's up to me not only to make you do it, but to make you like it!"

Bibbs shivered. And he turned upon his father a look that was almost ghostly. "I can't," he said, in a low voice. "I can't."

"Can't go back to the shop?"

"No. Can't like it. I can't."

Sheridan jumped up, his patience gone. To his own view, he had reasoned exhaustively, had explained fully and had pleaded more than a father should, only to be met in the end with the unreasoning and mysterious stubbornness which had been Bibbs' baffling characteristic from childhood. "By George, you will!" he cried. "You'll go back there and you'll like it! Gurney says it won't hurt you if you like it, and he says it 'll kill you if you go back and hate it; so it looks as if it was about up to you not to hate it. Well, Gurney's a fool! Hatin' work doesn't kill anybody; and this isn't goin' to kill you, whether you hate it or not. I've never made a mistake in a serious matter in my life, and it wasn't a mistake my sendin' you there in the first place. And I'm goin' to prove it—I'm goin' to send you back there and vindicate my judgment. Gurney says it's all 'mental attitude.' Well, you're goin' to learn the right one! He says in a couple of more months this fool thing that's been the matter with you'll be disappeared completely and you'll be back in as good or better condition than you were before you ever went into the shop. And right then is when you begin over—right in that same shop! Nobody can call me a hard man or a mean father. I do the best I can for my children, and I take the full responsibility for bringin' my sons up to be men. Now, so far, I've failed with you. But I'm not goin' to keep on failin'. I never tackled a job yet I didn't put through, and I'm not goin' to begin with my own son. I'm goin' to make a man of you. By God! I am!"

Bibbs rose and went slowly to the door, where he turned. "You say you give me a couple of months?" he said.

Sheridan pushed a bell-button on his desk. "Gurney said two months more would put you back where you were. You go home and begin to get yourself in the right 'mental attitude' before those two months are up! Good-by!"

"Good by, sir," said Bibbs, meekly.

Material Was There.

Katie was starting out to spend the afternoon with her cousin, Nellie. Though the two little girls were fond of one another a few hours' play would frequently end in a vigorous dispute. "Now, Katie," said her mother, as she said good-by to her little daughter, "remember it takes two to make a quarrel." "Well," said Katie, "there's me and her."

EDINBURGH RAIDED BY ZEPPELINS

Ten Persons Killed and Eleven Injured in Scotland.

NO CASUALTIES IN ENGLAND

Berlin Says Dirigibles Also Shelled Leith, Firth of Forth Docks, New Castle and the Tyne Factories.

Berlin, April 4.—Edinburgh and Leith, dock establishments on the Firth of Forth and an important ship-building works on the Tyne were attacked Sunday night in a Zeppelin raid over England and Scotland, the admiral announced.

There were numerous fires and violent explosions. A battery near New castle was silenced. All the Zeppelins returned safely.

No Casualties in England.

London, April 4.—Zeppelins again appeared over Great Britain Sunday night, killing ten and injuring eleven persons in Scotland. There were no casualties in England, whose eastern counties were visited.

It was the third raid on successive nights, beginning Friday.

The casualties were officially listed as follows: Killed seven men, no women, three children; injured, five men, two women and four children. The official statement says:

"It appears that altogether six Zeppelins took part in the raids of Sunday night. Three raided southeast counties of Scotland, one the north east coast of England and the remaining two eastern counties of England."

"The vessels which raided Scotland cruised over southeastern counties. Their course gave no indication of any special locality for attack, but thirty six explosive and seventeen incendiary bombs were dropped on various places, damaging some hotels and dwellings houses."

"One vessel visited the northeast coast and dropped twenty-two explosive and fifteen incendiary bombs. The two remaining ships crossed the English coast over eastern counties. They were both engaged at various times by anti-aircraft artillery and appear to have been prevented by this means from selecting any definite locality as their objective."

"Thirty-three explosive and sixty five incendiary bombs were dropped by these two vessels. As far as has been ascertained no casualties were caused in England."

Confirmation of recent reports that the latest Zeppelin raids have been for the purpose of locating the British grand fleet is seen in the fact that the coast of Scotland was attacked. The Zeppelins are now being equipped with a new kind of searchlight of high power and also illuminating bombs which are used in searching the land and water beneath the ships."

A careful search was made of the coast and particularly the harbors where the Germans evidently expected to find warships at anchor."

Zeppelin Shells Dunkirk.

Paris, April 4.—A German Zeppelin dropped bombs on Dunkirk. Two civilians were killed.

The raid on Dunkirk is believed to have been in retaliation for the recent allied raid on the German air base in Schleswig-Holstein.

Amsterdam despatches say that Count Zeppelin was called to the Kaiser's headquarters after the Schleswig-Holstein raid and that they were worked out with General von Falken hayn, chief of staff, plans for a great aerial campaign.

PLAN GOVERNMENT OIL WELLS Bill Designed to Force Reduction in Price of Gasoline.

Washington, April 4.—Development of government oil lands to force private producers to lower the price of gasoline was proposed in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Bailey, of Pennsylvania.

The measure would authorize the secretary of the interior to develop oil lands in the public domain and sell the product in the open market, giving preference to "independent refiners."

The secretary would also be authorized to have the oil refined by contract. The bill would appropriate $10,000,000 to begin.

Prefers Jail to Penitentiary.

Allentown, Pa., April 4.—Harry Jones, caught by a posse several weeks ago after the barn of Allen Boyer, of Salisbury, had been burned, pleaded guilty before Judge Gorman. He became angry when he couldn't get a blanket after permission to sleep in the barn had been given. Jones, who hails from Carlisle, was given the option of staying in the Lehigh jail or going to the Eastern Penitentiary, and elected to stay here. He got seven years and a fine of $1000.

Ex-Slave Dies in Almshouse.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 4.—"Old Simon" Chism, colored, a former slave, who for years was a familiar figure about the Dauphin county court house and was known to practically every lawyer and official in the county, died at the almshouse, where he was taken recently.

Love That Wins.

The love that is kind, that envies not, and is humble, will win its way through doors that are barred to the self-assertive and the overbearing.

ACCUSES DUPONTS

Underwood Challenges Them to Deny Attempt to Kill Nitrogen Project.

Washington, April 4.—Senator Underwood, from the floor challenged denial of charges made in a speech in the senate that the Dupont Powder company had attempted to defeat legislation for a government nitrogen plant.

Underwood had read a letter from Pierre S. Dupont, president of the company, saying it had not sought to defeat the Muscle Shoals nitrogen plant, and explained the powder company's bill providing for a nitrogen plant.

Underwood's reply charged Hugh L. Cooper and Charles B. Landis, agents for the powder company, with undertaking to defeat the house bill and added if Dupont or either of the agents would write a specific denial of the charge he would offer them to be read in the senate.

"If the powder company does not avail itself of the opportunity for this public denial," said Underwood, "it will be convincing to me that my assertions in a speech of last week were not unfounded."

PLAN LAW TO MEET UNFAIR IMPORTATION

Anti-Dumping and Competition Bills Outlined.

Washington, April 4.—President Wilson and the majority leader of the house, Representative Claude Kitchin of North Carolina, agreed on general terms for anti-dumping and unfair competition legislation to meet conditions after the European war. The ways and means committee will put them in the revenue bill which Mr. Kitchin told the president would be ready for the house about April 29.

The anti-dumping legislation will be along the general lines of that eliminated from the present tariff law. On foreign goods to be sold in the United States at less than the market price in the country from which they are shipped, the new provision will impose an additional tariff to bring the selling price in the United States up to what it would be if the goods were sold at the market price in the foreign country.

Unfair competition legislation will be along the same lines as the unfair competition sections of the present law apply to unfair competition in the United States.

The president and Kitchin discussed protecting the newly grown dyestuff industry in the United States from competition from abroad, but no conclusion was reached. Mr. Kitchin said he expected an additional tariff on dyestuffs would be imposed in the revenue bill but the details had not been worked out.

GET EIGHT-HOUR DAY

Paper Company Announces Policy Which Will Increase Employees.

Lock Haven, Pa., April 4.—A. G. Paine, vice president of the New York and Pennsylvania Paper Mill company, announced that he was going to try to operate the Lock Haven mills on a three-shift basis of eight hours each for four workers and a nine-hour day for day laborers, as soon as sufficient employees are secured. This means the employment of approximately 150 extra men.

The working hours for four workers will be from 7 A. M. to 3 P. M., 3 P. M. to 11 P. M., and from 11 P. M. to 7 A. M. For day laborers, from 7 A. M. to 12 noon, and from 1 P. M. to 5 P. M.

Spared Him Something.

He had just been accepted by the only girl in all the world. "Does your father know I write poetry?" he asked, anxiously. "Not yet, dear," she replied. "I've told him all about your drinking, and your gambling debts, but I couldn't tell him everything at once."

Where Dog Was Useful.

"Why don't you get rid of that dog, son? He is useless and has no spirit." "He's a big help to me in the junk business, dad. Comes home early every day with a kettle tied to his tail."—Louisville Courier Journal.

"SEE AMERICA FIRST"

THE LINCOLN HIGHWAY IN 10,000 ft. 10,000 ft.

MOTION PICTURES OF THIS WONDERFUL FILM

The scenes were taken along the route of this coast to coast road—it includes special features—it pictures governors and leading citizens who greeted the movie takers—it depicts the scenes of the far west, broncho busting cowboys, picturesque western landscapes, old fashioned stage coach routes in mountainous Nevada, government armored motor trucks on test runs; in fact it is a conglomeration of the most gripping scenic pictures that were ever filmed.

WALTER'S THEATRE

APRIL 6 GETTYSBURG APRIL 6

A picture that every Adams county person should see. It takes you across the world-famous highway and puts you in touch with its remarkable development.

An Educational Accomplishment

It has been termed by schoolmasters, teachers and college professors. Every school child in the county will be enlightened for having seen it.

"SEE AMERICA FIRST"

is tourists' slogan and never has re or perhaps never again will so much of America and such a diversified presentation of scenic beauties be brought within the reach of the masses.

EXHIBITIONS SCHEDULED SO EVERYONE MAY SEE IT

First show 1:30 p. m. for rural people and school children from out of town. Plenty of time after show to catch evening trains.
Second show 4:00 p. m. for pupils of Gettysburg schools.
Third show 6:30 p. m. Last show 9 p. m.

To Cover Scratches.

To cover scratches on furniture and at the same time to collect all dust, rub with a soft cloth which has been well moistened with the following mixture. Equal parts of cedar vinegar, turpentine and linseed oil. Put the three in a bottle, shake well, and it is ready for use. It may be kept for any length of time. This is fine to use on varnished floors; it keeps them glossy and preserves the varnish.

What He Would Do.

"What would you do, Jimson," asked Professor Brainfax, "if you saw a man fall dead in the street without apparent reason?" "I really wouldn't know what to do, sir," answered the young student. "I think I should just let him lie there. It would certainly be wrong of my man to drop dead in the street without first giving his reasons for doing so."

Indians as Slaves.

That a large number of Indians were once held in slavery at a settlement on Gray's harbor, Puget sound, a fact not generally known, is recalled by the death there of Schickulash Pete, former slave and another of the multitudinous "oldest residents of the Northwest" having lived 110 years, more or less.

Words That Live.

It was Baxter, chaplain in Oliver Cromwell's army, author of "The Saints' Rest" and other books, who dug up from an obscure seventeenth-century writer, Rupertus Meldenius, and made current coin these golden words: "In essentials, unity; in non-essentials, liberty; and in both, charity."

Some Symphony Concert.

A Banker (Me.) woman, who had occasion to visit an office in the building in which a poultry show was being held one afternoon, heard the noise and innocently remarked: "Why, I didn't know there was a symphony concert this afternoon." She thought the musicians were tuning up in the corridor back of the stage.

Association of Ideas.

Foag was giving his four-year-old a "picky back" ride. In this position the youngster came into close proximity with the bald pate of his sire. Rubbing his tiny hand over the glossy surface, he exclaimed, "Moon, papa, moon!"

NOW THAT I'M OUT OF WORK, MR. POLITICAL BOSS, I THINK YOU OUGHT TO GIVE ME A JOB AS ROAD INSPECTOR. JUST THINK OF ALL THE ROAD REPAIRING I USED TO DO FOR THIS STATE WITHOUT ASKING A BIT OF PAY FOR IT!

No. 1121—Fashion demands blue—much blue this season, so we've chosen Copen Blue for this Whipcord Suit, and given it a semi-sailor collar piped with green and an over-collar of black taffeta trimmed with green buttons. The circular flounce of the coat has a band of black taffeta around the bottom. The fullness is gathered in the back by two tabs, which are trimmed with fancy buttons. A good flaring model. Lined with blue tulle de Cygne. Price $22.00

No. 1123—This Checked Suit is semi-fitted. The skirt is trimmed around the bottom with a black taffeta band. Black suede belt across the back of the coat lends a swagger touch to this flaring model. Lined throughout with gray Peau de Cygne. The smart little cape has a band of black taffeta and the over-collar is of the same material. Price $27.00

No. 1217—Blue Wool Poplin is the material used for this smart suit, lined with corn-cob silk, which extends into an over collar and revers, giving it a gala Spring touch. The style arrangement of the lo, se belt and self buttons, forming an ornament in back, distinguishes this from other suit. Coat and skirt have just enough sweep to make it a youthful model. Buttons used

No. 1102—There could be no Spring without a Hip-Length Model, so this suit of blue wool poplin is bound to be a winner. Has a well-fitted sailor collar. Black satin band trims the bottom of coat, collar and cuffs. It is effectvely trimmed with a silver thread trimming on skirt and coat. Lined with cerise satin and trimmed with fancy buttons. Price $30.00

Suits at $9.50 $12.50 $15.00 up One Of These Suits Is For You

MEMORY does not disclose a season of such apparel taste and beauty as we find this Spring. Simplicity is the key-note of today's styles—simplicity and comfort and a proper respect for the loveliness of natural lines.

Such a profusion of all manner of models and fabrics are on display at our store that you will have an hour of real pleasure when you come to pick yours. If in doubt, you will find our salespeople the most unobtrusively helpful folks in the world. They are experts and their judgment may be valuable in regard to just what model and color is "just made for you"

UNION CITY VICTIM REGAINED HEALTH

Mr. Martinran Finds Good Health After Using Wonderful Remedy.

C. Martinran of 42 Graves street, Union City, Pa., after long suffering from ailments of the stomach and the digestive tract, took Mayr's Wonderful Remedy with the most remarkable results.

The suffering of years was ended with the first dose.

Mr. Martinran's experience is told in a letter—written a year after taking the remedy, thus proving the permanent nature of the benefits. He wrote:

"It has been a year since I took your treatment, which I am sure did me a great amount of good. My health at present is good, thanks to your wonderful remedy. I will always recommend it to my friends."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfied your money will be returned.

for a fine complexion

you must do something more than use cosmetics. You must keep the blood pure, the liver and kidneys active and the bowels regular. You must also correct the digestive ills that cause muddy skin and dull eyes.

Beecham's Pills

offer you the needed help. They are mild in action, but quickly strengthen the stomach, gently stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. They put the body in good condition so the organs work as nature intended. Backed by sixty years of usefulness, Beecham's Pills
